Livingstone, a premier land brokerage firm, is founded and operated by seasoned in-house landmen. Our deep understanding of the unique challenges associated with contractor partnerships has enabled us to craft a streamlined process designed to navigate and resolve these complexities effectively.

- Would you like to know the status of your project at any given time?
- Have you ever wanted to know the average price per acre and rod for your right-of-way project in real-time?
- Have you ever wanted to feel like your contractors should be focusing more on helping you achieve your goals, and less on how many days they could bill?
- Have you ever felt that your contractors are not fully engaged in your project?

We've come up with a system to manage that!

Project Management and Accountability

Livingstone has worked with leading project management software developers to produce a system that will manage every step of your project

Understanding the importance of staying informed, we've created a project management system that ensures complete transparency. You'll have real-time insights into your project's status whenever you need them.

At Livingstone, we harness the power of Monday.com to streamline our operations. This robust platform enables us to deconstruct complex projects into manageable tasks. Our commitment to customization allows you to access tailored reports, offering a window into our ongoing progress at your convenience. We diligently track each team member's performance metrics, guaranteeing proactive development and project momentum. By leveraging this sophisticated tool, we maintain strict adherence to budgets and schedules. The era of blind trust in your contractors' updates is over; with Livingstone, you're in the driver's seat of project oversight.

In summary, you'd be hard-pressed to find another land services firm that is more dedicated to helping you and your organization achieve your objectives!
